Charity Art Exhibition

On Tuesday, 11 February 2025, a charity exhibition of artworks by our talented students, Anđela Vučković, Maša Alvirović, Alyona Melenikova, Andreja Mitić and Natalija Zlatić, was held at Galerija 73. The event was beautifully complemented by a musical performance from our students Simon Dangubić, Tara Manigodić, Matija Trifunović, Lana Lazović and their Music teacher, Vesna Božović. All proceeds from the sold artworks were donated to the HISBAS association. We would like to thank all the wonderful students, teachers, parents, and friends who attended the event and helped us achieve our goal: to foster empathy through art and support those in need.

First Prize for Đački Kutak

Our school magazine has once again been honoured with an award. We are proud to announce that we won first place as the best primary school magazine in the Society for Serbian Language and Literature competition. On 26th January 2025, in Sala Heroja (Hall of Heroes) at the Faculty of Philology, we were presented with the award certificate. Although not all members of the journalism team were able to attend the event on a Sunday, those who did charmed everyone present with their grace, poise, and the ease of seasoned journalists. We received a round of applause, and at our next meeting, we shared our impressions and began planning the next issue.

Our School Joins ACES, an Association of IB Schools

In February, our school became a member of ACES (The Association of Central European IB Schools), a prestigious network of over 45 schools. ACES is part of a larger group of international schools in Central and Eastern Europe, CEESA (Central and Eastern European Schools Association), and promotes IB education by supporting member schools in professional development and facilitating the exchange of ideas and best practices.

Introducing Our New Teachers

Milena Petrović

Milena is an English language teacher and a doctoral student at the Faculty of Philology, University of Belgrade. She holds a Bachelor's degree in English Language and Literature and a Master's degree in Language and Literature, both from the Faculty of Philology, University of Belgrade. She has worked as an English language instructor for elective courses at the Faculty of Philology in Belgrade.
